Message from the Director

"For over 20 years, The Institute of Management of Saint-Joseph University (IGE) has been offering a Hospitality Management program that produces professionals ready for the challenges of a market in constant evolution. We are building on our strong academic history and intrinsic strengths in our kitchen learning-center, training restaurant and with our partner hotels, to create a regional hub of expertise for the hospitality industry, especially in the culinary area.

A qualified Lebanese kitchen workforce, a scarce resource today, is very much in demand in the Middle East and Africa. Furthermore, the market does not cater to high level professionals seeking to develop their competencies in advanced techniques.

By joining the "Institut Paul Bocuse Worldwide Alliance", we will be able to develop talents and lead the hospitality industry to new heights, in line with the vision instated and lead by Mr. Paul Bocuse. The resulting synergy will help position the Institute of Management (IGE) as a regional and international hub of expertise."

Joe Chehab, Director of the Institute of Management (IGE) of the Saint-Joseph University of Beirut
